City officials deny reports

By JEFF BROWN

SOUTH BAY - Three South Bay Commissioners Tuesday, April 5, denied charges that they were seeking a position for a Black in city hall or pay increases for themselves when they brought the matters up at a workshop session two weeks ago.

The commissioners' salary was on the agenda for Tuesday night's regular meeting of the commission, and Mike Underwood, a resident of South Bay, brought up the Black employee issue when he addressed the commission.

City Commissioner Willie Marshall mentioned the lack of Black employees at city hall at the March 23 workshop meeting when he asked City Manager Max Harrelle why no Blacks were employed at city hall.

Harrelle at the time responded that no vacancies had opened in the year since Marshall had taken a seat on the commission.

"I'm sorta happy to see that," said Underwood adding that he objected to the matter being brought before the commission. "If these people are doing the job, I hope we keep them. If not, I hope we get rid of them."

He said Marshall's question was out of line.

"That's telling me, one we gotta fire someone or, two, we gotta open up another position that we haven't had in a while," said Underwood who was listed on the agenda as a concerned citizen.

"I don't think we expected him (Harrelle) to fire anybody, but there will be job openings in the future," said Vice Mayor Vernita Cox. She said the city is supposed to be an equal opportunity employer that receives federal funds and should give qualified Blacks a "break" when vacancies have to be filled.

"See if that person can do the job. It never crossed my mind that someone would be fired to create a spot for someone."

Mayor Donald Tanner said he understood the comments by several members of the commission at the March 23 meeting as implying that a position should be opened for a Black at city hall.

That is the way it was presented," said Tanner.

Underwood suggested the city should try to hire the best qualified people it can, regardless of color.

Commissioner Rennie Morris said the commission has been doing that and pointed to Police Chief Charles Forrest, a white hired since a 3-2 majority was seated on the board, as proof.

"Well, the last week, all you hear is you got racial problems in South Bay and I say no we don't," said Underwood.

"I do not look at race," said Cox. "I look at problems. I solve problems."

Underwood also asked why the city commission didn't raise its salary in October when it passed the budget, instead of waiting until April to consider the possibility.

"If you need more, you should have done this October," said Underwood. "If I give you another $2,000 or $3,000 tonight, we may not be able to build a ball field or teach a course for little kids. When you took the job, you knew what the salary was."

Marshall then denied that he was ever interested in raising the commissioners' salaries, claiming he was more interested in "hacking" them. "As someone was saying we were talking about doubling our salary, I think that's the biggest lie in the world," said Marshall.

He added that he spends a lot of money out of his own funds to attend meetings out of town if the topic may be important to the city.

"I spend a heap of money out my pocket trying to go here and there," said Marshall. "And I want to go to try to bring things into the city."

$1.48 million could be saved by refunding bonds

BELLE GLADE - The city of Belle Glade could save up to $1.48 million dollars by refunding last year's two water and sewer revenue bonds.

The city commission Monday night, April 4, decided to pursue the possibility of refunding the bonds as recommended by the city's financial advisor, Southeastern Municipal Bonds, Inc.

Robert T. Wagner, president of the company, told the city commission that the city could save up to $1.48 million depending on how it decides to refund the issues and what the interest rate on the refinancing issue would be.

The city floated two bond issues last year. It floated a $4,075,000 issue in June at 12 percent and 12.125 percent.

It floated a second issue in December for $4,325,000 at 10.5 percent.

By refunding and refinancing those two issues at a lower rate, the city could save money, Wagner told the commission.

The bond market has improved for investors since last year, he said. Interest rates are fluctuating between nine percent and nine and a half percent.

If the city refinances with an issue with a 9.25 interest rate, it could save up to $1.2 million dollars in level savings, Wagner said.

If the commissioners opted for early savings under the same refinancing issue, it could save $629,667.

Wagner explained that refinancing under an early savings plan would save the city a large amount of money in the first five to 10 years under the new issue, but that those savings would be reduced in later years.

He said that level savings gives the city an equal savings over the entire term of the issue.

He suggested the city may want to go for an early savings if it is a cash-flow problem or needs a large amount of money immediately for a

Ballot will list five

PAHOKEE - Five candidates will appear on the May 3 Palmetto municipal election ballot but it's doubtful if a proposed change in the city's form of government will appear on that ballot for the citizens' decision.

Two city council seats are at stake in the election. Three of the candidates have qualified for the race for the seat currently held by George Tillis. Tillis isn't running for reelection.

One man who qualified for that race dropped out Wednesday, April 6. Ralph Ainsworth had qualified last week, but changed his mind and withdrew from the race Wednesday morning.

Wynia Cummings, Ramon Horta, Jr. and George Walter Rashley, Jr. are still trying to win the seat Tillis is vacating. Cummings has sat on the council before. She, Rashley and Horta were all defeated in last year's municipal elections.

Councilman William E. McKinstry is running for reelection against Glen Carrick. Carrick also ran unsuccessfully for a seat last year.

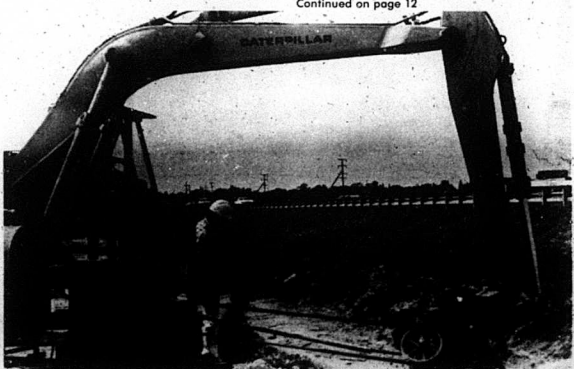

The Pahokee Lion's Club has invited the candidates to a symposium where they will each be given a chance to speak for five minutes. The tentative date for that symposium is Tuesday, April 12 at noon in the Lake Club.

Voters will probably have to wait the chance to air their views on the proposed change from a strong mayor-city council form of government to a city manager form until a special referendum can be arranged, according to City Clerk Betty J. McCoy.

The city council wanted to place the proposal on the ballot in a binding referendum, but delayed too long and couldn't Underwood also asked why the city commission was hearing individual employee problems. He said the employees' directors and supervisors should be able to handle most incidents.

He was referring to an incident involving an employee who complained that she was being harassed by her supervisor when she didn't arrive from lunch on time.

The employee was depending on another employee for a ride to and from lunch and that second employee was often late leaving and coming back.

At the March 23 meeting, one commissioner asked if it would be possible to give the employee the use of a city vehicle for lunch hours to insure her timely departures and arrivals.

That request wasn't approved. "With me as a citizen, can someone come pick me up for lunch?" asked Underwood, adding that the employee should be expected to take only the regular lunch break and not be paid for any extra-time off the job.

Cox said she suggested the employee's lunch break be juggled to coincide with the lunch break of the individual she rode with, but that she not be given any more time than any other employee.

"I made it strictly clear that she was not to get one minute overtime," said Cox.

Robbery charged

A Belle Glade resident was arrested for allegedly beating and robbing a juvenile Sunday, April 3.

According to a report by Detective William Bass, Jr., of the Glades sub-station of the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office, Charles Woods, 26, of 662 SW Avenue C in Belle Glade, allegedly attacked a girl and robbed her of about $160 on US 441 between Pahokee and Belle Glade Sunday April 2 at about 11:30 p.m.

He was arrested the next morning for one count of strong arm robbery and three other charges.

dent was a "storm in a teacup. Something that might have been settled instead of the commission coming into it was blown out of proportion. A lot of irrelevant things were brought into it."

He suggested that it could have been solved by a grievance committee. Morris said the issues Underwood was asking about were "explored by the press."

He said accounts in the newspapers that Underwood cited weren't accurate. He said some of the issues were created by "pressures on the white community" after Blacks took over a majority of the seats on the commission a year ago. He said people expected the Black commissioners to try to change everything and "rip things down."

"Since we've been elected, we have been through hell," said Morris.

He said most of the worries he alluded to were unfounded and that if the Blacks wanted to use their power to destroy anything in the city, they wouldn't have any problem because they have the majority on the commission.

Morris, Cox and Marshall are the Black members of the commission. Tanner is white and Morris said Commissioner Refugio V. "Pancho" Garcia, Jr., a Hispanic, doesn't fit into either category.

"He's not white and he's not Black," said Morris.

He said if the Black commissioners wanted to place Blacks into the city hall administration, all they had to do was hire a Black police chief and not hire back the city clerk, manager or attorney every year.

"We are trying to make this little town a model town," said Cox.

The commission decided to table any discussion relative to increasing its salary until October.

Juveniles face burglary charges

PAHOKEE — Three juveniles, one 13-year old and two 16-year olds, are facing burglary of automobile charges after they allegedly broke into a truck at Everglades Memorial Hospital and stole several items.

According to a report by the Pahokee Police Department, the three allegedly broke into a pickup at the hospital at about 7:25 p.m. April 2.

They were pursued and one of the 16 year olds was apprehended.

The other two were apprehended and the property they stole was recovered and returned to the owner, Quality Electric of Clewiston.

The stolen items, which included an amp meter, ohm meter and tools, totaled about $350.

AILS DEWING

"AND WHAT NOT"

Just kidding, IRS

I'm going to have to make this a short and fast column. Think of it as the 1040EZ column of the year. Truth is, I need all the time I can muster between now and April 15 to tell the IRS what they already know. By keeping in touch with my boss and my bank, IRS knows all my sources of income for last year except the birthday check from my daughter. And that could show up under her charitable deductions.

It's not really preparing the return that takes so much of my time. It's finding all the pieces of paper to support my claim that I be allowed to keep enough for groceries and carfare out of what I earn. I have a simplified but totally inefficient filing system — throw all mail after Dec. 31 into one pile. On the last Sunday preceding the April 15 deadline, I sort out the needed tax return forms from the telephone bill stubs, unanswered letters, grocery coupons and stamps, pieces of cold toast, and unopened Christmas cards. From here it's a matter of filling in the blanks: how much money I got, how much Uncle Sam got of it, and how much more he needs to survive. There's no blank space to indicate how much I need to survive, unless I'm expected to do it on my $1,000 exemption.

Well, that's not all I do to get ready. First I have to read the page on "What Must Be" just in case I'm exempt this year because (a) I weigh more than 125 lbs., (b) have already paid a fair share, or (c) have a brother in the band. As soon as I had read where even if you died in 1982 you still have to pay, I gave up on any hope on that.

Then I look for possible added exemptions. There's nothing deductible, I see, for feeding stray cats or a slight deafness in one ear when I have full pressure system is moving in from the west. Tips not reported to my employer. What makes IRS think if I didn't tell the boss, I'd tell them? I'd alone tell the nearest Railroad Retirement Board. If you don't believe I'm reading all this check p.14 of the instructions.

Line 48 looks like a possibility: Alcohol Fuel Tax from a Nonconventional Source. I wonder if IRS would believe my car burned 10 gallons of Jack Daniels last year.

To check this out, I'm told on p.4 to contact the Unemployment Problem Resolution Office. That could be fun: "Hello, is this UPRO assistance? I have a problem. In 1982 my spouse died and I remarried but my present husband, who is 76, is dependent on his 98-year-old mother who is a fulltime student in a trade school.

"We're not sure who's dependent on whom. Also, last year we planted 2,000 trees. Are we eligible for reforestation amortization even if the trees died?"

"You may not recognize my voice but I'm one of those several people you mention on page 1 who asked to make voluntary contributions to reduce the public debt. I would send you the $4 million or so needed to reduce the deficit. My limitation on charitable contributions, although it might not for next year, providing I win a state lottery. Should I go ahead and send the check and hope for an exceptionally good year next year?"

"Hey, IRS, I'm just kidding. But what all those people ask me if they can send in extra money. You're kidding us, too, aren't you?"

Weather battle begins anew

The annual battle to preserve the agricultural weather service which warns of frost and freeze danger is about to begin.

Undeterred by the fact that Congress continues to support farm weather forecasting and specialized forest fire protection weather service, the President and the US Department of Commerce have put no funds for these items in the proposed 1984 budget.

Furthermore, the President has reportedly approved a program which would put the government's civilian weather observation satellites up for sale along with one of the Landstas which overlook our crops and oceans from outer space.

Meteorologists say that the government, instead of trashing the present system of weather research and forecasting, should be spending a billion dollars more over the next 10 years to modernize and improve the system. It now costs about a billion dollars a year to provide weather forecasting and to operate all the satellites and miscellaneous weather services.

Communications Satellite Corp., a private business, has proposed buying the satellite system and says the government would save a billion dollars over the next 10 years if the transfer was approved. But, congressional sources point out that the government still would have to purchase weather data from Comsat if the deal went through, and that would cost an estimated $400 million more to pay for the data over the next decade.

Letters to the editor

Editor:

We found Rev. Alvin L. Jones' letter to the Caloosa Belle to be a masterpiece of muddled thought, misdirection and misspelling. He seems more interested in defaming Sheriff Durkin and the men and women of the Hendry County Sheriff's Department than he is in trying to communicate the problems in Harlem.

If the good reverend was sincerely interested in solving their problems, he certainly went about it the wrong way. First, one should not introduce complaints at a county commissioner's meeting. One contacts Sheriff Durkin. Second, one does not have a woman telephone TV and news media and state that Sheriff Durkin's incompetence will be asked for at the meeting as was done in this case. Of course, unless one has motives other than trying to solve problems.

We wonder if Rev. Jones' motives are as straightforward as he wants us and the media to believe. Could it be that his motives are for personal gain, or for that of his church in Belle Glade? Well, whatever his reasons, many citizens of Hendry County find it hard to believe that Rev. Jones represents the residents of Harlem.

They deserve better.

Sincerely,
Robert E. Waters

Editor:

We the people of Buckhead Ridge, a community of Glades County, consisting of force organizations: Buckhead Ridge Home Owners, Buckhead Firemen and Ladies Auxiliary, Senior Citizens and the Disabled American Veterans, would like you to know the things that have been done to the community building here in Buckhead Ridge.

These things were bought and paid for by the members. The labor that was not donated by our members or other volunteers was also paid for by us.

Listed are the things that have been completed and plans are continuing for several other things to better the building and our community.

We feel sure you and others would like to know the things we have done and could not have completed without the help and work of good people pulling together.

These are the things that have been completed:

- Bought new air conditioning for the building
- Erected new safe lock and easy opening front doors
- New kitchen electric

- New tile on floors
- New fixtures for kitchen sink and plumbing
- New steam table
- Four 54-inch ceiling fans
- New deck
- Aluminum canopy for front door entrance
- Building was pressure cleaned
- Three stop blocks were placed in front of building
- Building was painted
- Organized Crime Watch (signs were erected in areas)

All these things have been done through the help of good people, donations and planned projects to support these things so we may have a better community as we have in Buckhead Ridge. We would like you to visit our activities at any time.

Boiler Plate

There is plenty for you to do

Walter Cronkite briefly visited the Glades last week. Cronkite cruised down the Caloosahatchee River in his sailboat to Moore Haven, where he had lunch at the Riverside Lodge Wednesday.

That afternoon, he continued on to Clewiston, tying up for the night at Clewiston Marina. He and shipmate Andy Rooney of "60 Minutes" fame spent the night at the Clewiston Inn before continuing on their way Thursday morning.

There were people, people everywhere Saturday for the big bicycle motocross races in Clewiston. A safe estimate of the crowd seems to be something on the order of 3,000 to 4,000 people.

I have seen BMX races before, but never any that were as well organized (or as large).

I don't know how the officials were able to keep the 1,000 plus riders organized throughout the day and racing continuously.

Robert Miller, Jack Smith and other members of Cane Country BMX Association did a whale of a job in putting on a play of this complexity and scope. I would give them an "A" for ambition and imagination.

The BMX Association received help from Clewiston Elks, Lions, Rotarians, Chamber of Commerce members, and even some students from Clewiston High School. All were involved with the logistical side of the race, providing the extras to make the race even more special.

Another event which came to a close this past week was "Jesus is Lord."

Though the seats in Clewiston's John B. Boy Auditorium were filled early, many spectators crowded in to stand throughout the 90 minute performance.

Friday's final performance, everyone seemed to think, was the best of the four and there was a feeling of disappointment among the cast that it was finally over.

Writer/producer Elizabeth Bass received a bouquet and a round of warm applause afterwards from the cast and choir.

I have watched the grass grow over the past few years and cannot but help believe that it is a phenomenon. The play is greater than the sum of its parts.

It leaves one impressed with the bountiful local talent and what can be done when people work together for a common goal.

Kilos on the horizon...

It has been a busy 1983 so far and there is no sign of let up.

On April 8-9 (this weekend) the National Powerboat Kilo Time Trials will be held on the Caloosahatchee River in Moore Haven.

This is the second year the event has been held in Glades County. A glance at the national record book shows that a number of records were set in Moore Haven last year.

If you like fast boats and all the activity that goes with time trials, the place for you this weekend is Moore Haven.

Incidentally, there will also be bass boat competition to see who has the fastest boat and radio controlled models which can reach speeds of up to 75 m.p.h.

Air Show...

The biggest air show in Clewiston history will be held April 16-17.

There will be hundreds of airplanes, as well as balloon rides, bi-plane rides, and helicopter rides. Ultralights, gliders, and airplanes which are now extinct, except for the collections of hobbyists, will also be featured.

The show is free and will be held at Clewiston Airport.

Black Gold Jubilee...

The last of the big Glades area festivals, Belle Glade's Black Gold Jubilee, begins April 8.

Activities are planned for a 10-day period with the grand finale (dare I pun further?) set for April 16-17.

Jubilee organizers are planning the world's largest salad this year.

Some of the events planned the final weekend include the one-half marathon (13 miles), parade, arts and crafts, baby crawl, haystack scramble, greased pole climb, catfish fry, music, pie eating contest, dances, cement canoe rides, canoe races, ski show, wild turtle race, hay scramble, salafine throw, rock toss, big wheel race, balloon send off, clown show and fireworks.

Did someone say there is nothing to do?

Immigration reform

Current Congressional action on Immigration Reform and Control is apt to have an immediate effect on consumers, farmers and the food industry.

The 98th Congress is again considering the long simmering illegal alien problem in the United States. Subcommittees in both the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives have already held a number of hearings.

They recently heard testimony on the farm labor segment of the overall immigration problem from a series of farm employer representatives.

Significant numbers of aliens, both legal and illegal, have made it possible for the American farmer to meet consumers' growing demands for food at reasonable prices.

Without those workers, experts say, the quantities of produce in the markets would be smaller and, thus, the prices would be higher.

Illegal alien workers, however, are not confined to agriculture, but because of Border Patrol raids on farms and the attendant publicity, the illegal farm worker is probably the most visible.

Frank Teets, President of the Florida Fruit & Vegetable Association (FFVA), in speaking about the association's testimony at the Congressional hearings stated, "Agriculture is closely monitoring and assisting the legislative effort where possible to reduce the dependency of agriculture on illegal workers and to increase the use of a legal work force, including the use of legal foreign workers where necessary."

He said the transition from a combination legal-illegal work force to one that is entirely legal must be done without trauma to the farmer, worker and consumer.

"Although it is preferable for employers to utilize a work force of legal U.S. residents, it will continue to be necessary and in the national interest to import temporary seasonal supplemental workers in critical labor intensive tasks," Teets said.

To do otherwise would be tantamount to limit production and thereby reduce employment possibilities for legal U.S. workers not only on the farm but in related industries, he explained.

Intervenor with the farm labor issue are: the responsibility of the employer to make certain he is hiring only legal workers; a sure fire method of identifying legal workers; and a recognition of international relations and problems in the economies of the countries from which the alien workers come.

Many ideas have been presented to the Senate and House subcommittees headed by Senator Alan Simpson, R-Wyoming, and Congressman Romano Mazzoli, D-Kentucky.

FFVA's testimony was presented by George F. Sorn, Assistant General Manager, who has over 30 years' experience in farm labor matters in the state.

The Florida association's presentation had support from other major agricultural organizations and in many respects was similar to recommendations of a national Agricultural Employment Work Group sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

FFVA's proposal would maintain the program called H-2 that allows employers, including agricultural employers, to bring in limited numbers of supplemental foreign workers for temporary periods under closely regulated and rather costly conditions. Supplemental H-2 workers were used in vegetables, citrus and tropical fruit crops in Florida for temporary periods from the early 1940's until 1965 in vegetables and tropical fruits until 1970 in citrus.

When all the commodities except sugarcane stopped using the supplemental H-2 Program because of restrictive Labor Department policies, the number of legal workers in the state increased, according to U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service statistics.

Under the H-2 Program, which is operated in Florida by FFVA and monitored by the West Indies Central Labor Organization, an employer, after he demonstrates there is a shortage of legal American workers, must pay to the H-2 worker and all workers similarly employed a minimum wage higher than the federal minimum, pay transportation for the worker from his country (or place of recruitment), furnish housing free and meals at cost, furnish transportation to and from the fields and contribute to the Social Security system in the foreign worker's home country.

FFVA's proposal would also establish a 5-year transitional program so that the change to a completely legal work force would not cause undue problems to the farm employers of the farm workers. The transitional program would not be restrictive on either the farm employer or the illegal worker during its operation. However, for each year of the 5-year period, the farm employer would have to reduce his dependency on the transitional foreign workers by 20% so that at the end of the 5 years, the transitional program would terminate, and he could legally employ only legal domestic workers or hire the same restrictive H-2 foreign worker program to fill the shortage.

Such a program would allow the employer to continue full production and harvesting, thus assuring the jobs of those working in related industry and keeping the produce moving in volume to the markets.

Such a program would allow the employer to continue full production and harvesting, thus assuring the jobs of those working in related industry and keeping the produce moving in volume to the markets.

The Children's Fishing tournament is scheduled for Friday evening from 4:30 p.m. to 6 at J-Sed-Fish Camp at the marina.

The bowling tournament is scheduled to start the next day and continue throughout the day at the Belle Glade Bowl on South Main Street.

The tennis tournament is scheduled to start at 8 a.m. Saturday, April 9, and the Golf Tournament is scheduled for Sunday at 1 p.m. at the golf course.

The golf tournament will be a low gross-low net event with prizes in the form of trophies going to the golfers in each division with the lowest gross and the lowest net. The best all-around golfer will also be recognized.

The racquetball tournament, scheduled for 6 p.m. Monday, April 11, will include at least two divisions for the men. According to Ken Coghill, the women's tournament will be cancelled if more interest isn't shown.

He said if more interest is shown, and more participants come out, the tournament could include three men's divisions, including a rookie C Division, plus a women's division and some doubles divisions.

He said those wanting to participate may sign up until game time Monday night.

Election

have the appropriate ordinances passed in time for it to get placed on the May 3 document.

The council can place a binding referendum on the ballot through an ordinance.

McCoy said she expects the council will have to hold a special referendum on the issue.

The referendum the council has discussed would, if passed by the voters, eliminate the elected mayor's seat and create a city manager's post.

The mayor would be elected by the city councilmen from their members, and the city would hire a city clerk and city marshal. The clerk, marshal and mayor are elected by the voters under the city's present system.

Bond refinancing project.

The level savings would be better in other cases, he said.

If the city refinanced the June 1982 (1982A) and December 1982 (1982B) bonds at nine percent, it could save $1.48 million in level savings and $762,164 in early savings.

The interest rate is determined by the market. Wagner saw one advantage of refinancing all the bonds would be to eliminate some of the restrictive measures in the early issues, but Mayor Thomas L. Altman said he wasn't sure it was the effort or expense of refinancing those earlier issues.

"I think it's in the interest of the city to move expeditiously in the refunding," said Altman. "The only real decision is whether to go with analysis two (just the 1982 bonds) or analysis three (all the bonds from 1964 to 1982). The 64 bond issue has served us well, and unless something jumps out of here and says 'Let's change it,' I'm tempted to say 'If it ain't broke, don't fix it.' I don't really feel strong either way."

The commissioners indicated an interest in refinancing the 1982 bonds, and Wagner said he will start making preliminary preparations in the next few days.

A Message To Our Customers About The 10% Withholding Law

Recently, we informed you of a new law passed by Congress that will require us to withhold 10 percent of interest payments as a prepayment against taxes on most accounts beginning July 1, 1983. We suggested that if you oppose this new measure, as we do, that you send a postcard or letter to your Congressman and Senators urging the support of repeal of this law.

Millions of Americans across the country did just that, and Congress received more mail on this issue than on possibly any other in history. As a result, a clear majority of Congressmen and Senators have cosponsored bills which would repeal the withholding law.

Regrettably, a few key Congressional leaders, as well as the President himself, have acted to block repeal, and have harshly criticized bankers for conducting what they say has been a misleading campaign of distorted facts about this law.

We have used strong words in describing this withholding law, and strong words have been used by a few political leaders in condemning the repeal effort.

We think, therefore, that it is appropriate to review the major features of this law, and the reasons it was passed last summer by Congress, with the active support of the President, as part of a larger tax program called the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act (TEFRA).

Beginning July 1, 1983, banks and other financial institutions will be required to withhold 10 percent on payments of interest and dividends. This money then goes to the IRS in much the same way as payroll deductions are now handled. The amount of taxes withheld will be credited to you at the end of the year when you figure your tax bill.

You may claim exemption from the withholding requirement if you meet any of these tests for last year (1982 if filing form in 1983):

- Your tax liability for last year was $600 or less; or
- You are 65 or older, and your tax liability for last year was $1,500 or less; or
- You and your spouse filed a joint income tax return last year, and your tax liability was $1,000 or less; or
- You or your spouse or both of you are 65 or older, you filed a joint income tax return last year, and your tax liability was $2,500 or less; or
- You were not required to file an income tax return last year.

Your tax liability for last year is the income tax shown on your return minus any credits you were entitled to claim (other than the credit for withholding on wages, pensions, interest and dividends, etc.); the earned income credit; and the credit for federal tax on special fuels and oils).

You must file a certificate in order to claim exemption from withholding. If your payor provides a certificate, please use it. Otherwise, use the one IRS provides.

According to the IRS, if you file a false certificate when you are not entitled to the exemption from withholding, or if you fraudulently fail to revoke an exemption when you know you are no longer entitled to exemption, you may be subject to penalties of up to $500 fine, one year imprisonment or both.

The IRS claims that withholding on interest and dividends is necessary to catch the small percentage of those who either deliberately fail or forget to pay the taxes they owe on interest and dividend income, or fail to file a tax return at all.

An IRS study reports that individuals fail to report up to 10 percent of interest income, although the same IRS study shows that it is possible for the IRS to reduce this rate to around three percent where accurate 1099 information reports on interest payments are received in computer-readable form and are matched against individual tax returns. Banks and other payors of interest and dividends are required to provide 1099 information to the IRS.

We believe that it is important that all citizens pay the taxes they owe, so that honest taxpayers do not bear an unfair burden. We also believe that the evidence is clear that the IRS can do a better job of identifying tax cheaters and collecting taxes that are owed.

If the IRS will do its job, then you, as a responsible taxpayer, will not be forced to forgo the use of 10 percent of your interest, nor to determine your possible eligibility for an exemption.

If you are among the 75 percent of taxpayers who receive a refund because of overwithholding on wages and salaries, you will now be giving the government, in effect, an additional interest-free loan.

The fundamental fact is that withholding is unnecessary. These are reasons why we oppose this law and seek its repeal. You may have others of your own, and may have expressed them to your representatives in Washington.

Unfortunately, a few elected representatives remain unconvinced, although we do not believe it is possible for a few, or even the President, to hold out against the sustained will of the public. We hope you will continue to make your views known to Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Zumpf grand marshalls for Jubilee parade

Irvin and Abby Zumpf will marshal this year's Black Gold Jubilee parade, an honor traditionally bestowed upon the Belle Glade Chamber of Commerce Citizen of the Year.

Mrs. Zumpf was named Citizen of the Year last October at the chamber's annual awards banquet and her husband, Irvin, was honored as the chamber's Agri-Industrialist Man of the Year.

The parade is scheduled to start at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, April 16.

The parade will organize and start at Glades Central Community High School. It will travel east on Canal Street North, south on Main Street to SE Avenue E and east to the Elks Club where it breaks up.

The theme for the parade will be "Harvest Fantasy."

Cash prizes will be given to non-profit local organizations. The first prize winner will receive $150. The second prize winner will receive $100 and $75 will go the third place winner.

The cash prizes were donated by local businesses.

Plaques will go to business and out-of-town winners.

Those wishing to enter the parade may contact Carol Ann Haller at 996-1707 or 996-2745.

Golf Tournament slated

The golf pro at the Belle Glade Golf Shop said that he wouldn't be surprised if 65 or 70 golfers tee-off when the annual Black Gold Jubilee Golf Tournament gets underway Sunday, April 10. The tournament is one of the biggest events of the year at the city-owned nine-hole course, according to John Wright, the club professional.

"We always have a lot of players in that," he said. "I wouldn't be surprised to get 65 or 70 players in it. It's always a big tournament. One of our biggest."

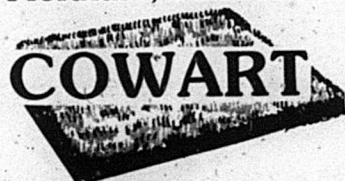

The tournament is scheduled to get underway at 1 p.m. with a shot gun start. All the participants in both the men's and ladies' division will receive Black Gold Jubilee caps for taking part in the low-gross, low-net tournament.

Prizes, in the form of trophies and gift certificates, will be given to the golfers in each division with the lowest gross and the lowest net. The best all-around golfer will also be recognized.

The meaning of Black Gold

The name may conjure visions of roughnecks and wildcatters for most people, and there is an oil field near Felda but for the people who live in the Everglades Agricultural Area, Black Gold means muck. It's 700,000 acres of rich, organic soil laid down over thousands of years by the River of Grass flowing south from Lake Okeechobee; the largest deposit of muck in the United States.

Black Gold is more than dirt. It's the reason farmers in the Glades can grow some of the richest fields of vegetables and sugar cane in the world. Black Gold is the reason Belle Glade can claim the title of the Winter Vegetable Capital of the World, supplying fresh salad vegetables to the northern states when they're covered with snow.

So what better way to celebrate the Fifth Annual Black Gold Jubilee than to build a world record salad?

This is going to be the salad to end all salads; seven tons of vegetables; 13 different varieties of vegetables; enough vitamins and minerals to supply West Palm Beach for a day or two.

All the details haven't been ironed out on the salad bowl but it's caught the imagination of people from Belle Glade to San Francisco and a lot of points in between. It could be the basis for the biggest Black Gold Jubilee ever.

Another festival first will be a campground where visitors will be able to travel back to a simpler time, where the men, women and children dress and live in styles common before 1840.

The campers will be members of the Everglades Cap and Ball Black Powder Club and Historical Shooting Society and President Biff Moore said what makes it unique is that nothing that wasn't available to people before 1840, the year of the last big trappers rendezvous out West, can be seen in the camp.

The "Buckskinners" will put their camp on display and will hold tomahawk throwing and black powder shooting displays and contests.

The jubilee will also feature fishing, food (catfish on Saturday and barbecued chicken on Sunday as well as several ethnic food booths), an Agatha Christie play, raft and canoe races, fireworks, games for the kids and a parade for everyone.

A band entertains the Jubilee crowd.

Arts and crafts a part of Jubilee

Those attending the 1983 Black Gold Jubilee will have ample opportunity to take home a memento. Anything from paintings to balloons, from Polish sausage to Indian foods will be on sale at the Marina April 16 and 17.

As many as 30 to 40 merchants are expected to set up booths and offer their wares for sale during the event.

Merchants and shoppers will be sheltered from any inclement weather by a large canopy, another first for the festival.

"There will be artists from all over the state representing several art forms," said Becky Wedgworth.

Some of the crafts and items a shopper will have the opportunity to purchase will be Indian crafts, hand sewn items, quilts, plants, driftwood sculptures, balloons, sketches, paintings, shellcraft items and printed T-shirts.

Food booths will offer anything from the old favorites, hotdogs, hamburgers, snowcones and baked goods, to Polish sausage and Indian fry bread.

Many events planned for children yearly

The Black Gold Jubilee is a family festival and a special emphasis is placed on children and ways to keep them occupied and having fun. More often than not, fun for kids means fun for the grownups as well as parents and other spectators cheer on the small fry trying to shinny up a greased pole to capture a $10 bill mailed on top.

Besides the greased pole climb, the youngsters will be participating in a children's fishing contest, a

Last year's experience in baby crawl doesn't count

There'll be a pet show with trophies for the funniest pet, the best show dog, the best show cat, the best trained pet and the most unusual pet.

They'll be off like a thundering herd of turtles at the world-famous (well, festival famous anyway) wild turtle races. Some of the turtles escaped the stew pot last year when would-be entrants bought their racers from a local fish house.

Others who lost may have found their irate owners weren't above putting the losers into a pot. We don't claim to know.

The annual baby crawl is the only event which will guarantee the winner didn't use experience last year. The race pits speedsters less than a year old against each other as doting mothers try to lure them across the finish line before other babes.

Baby crawling contest

The baby crawling contest for this year's Black Gold Jubilee will be again sponsored by the Belle Glade Junior Woman's Club.

The event will start at 3 p.m., Saturday, April 16 at the Belle Glade Marina.

Following is a list of the rules for the contest: The child must be under one year of age; The child must not be able to walk; No one can touch the child from start to finish unless he crawls off the mat; If the child crawls off the mat, then someone can put him back where he went off; Someone can go to the finish line and call the baby; Mothers are asked not to get on the mat.

A candidate for the baby crawl in Black Gold Jubilee of earlier year.

children's art contest, with the winning entries placed on display at the marina, a haystack scramble to find coins, big wheel races and a pie eating contest.

Kids can't resist throwing rocks into water so they'll have a chance to win a prize by aiming those rocks at a target.

World record salad is Jubilee goal

Seven tons of salad isn't chicken feed.

Seven tons of salad is a world record and that's the goal of the Black Gold Jubilee Committee for the festival's fourth year.

The Guinness Book of World Records hasn't set up a category for salads yet, but the people of Belle Glade intend to change all that. We intend to build a salad no one can ignore. It'll be a big salad, three times larger than the largest on record—a 624-cubic foot salad built in California's Salinas Valley.

Local farmers are contributing nine varieties of leafy vegetables as well as carrots, celery, radishes and tomatoes.

Kraft will supply the dressing for the 13,000 gallons of greenery. The company has committed 150 cases of 16-ounce bottles of taste tempters. That's more than 112 gallons.

Salads aren't just a gimmick in the Belle Glade area. The city is known as "The Winter Vegetable Capital of the World" and for good cause.

The rich, black muck that surrounds the city is the reason Palm Beach County supplies more sweet corn, more celery, more sugar cane and more radishes than any other county in the United States. Most of the fresh salad vegetables eaten during the winter east of the Mississippi River are grown in the fields of muck in western Palm Beach County.

The muck is the "Black Gold" that gave the city's annual festival its name five years ago, when city leaders used the city's 50th anniversary as a springboard for an annual celebration of the vegetable and sugar cane harvest, which comes in the spring instead of the fall as it does in most farming areas.

The "super" salad is our way of getting more people involved in the agricultural industry. They'll be able to see 1,809 cubic feet of vegetables tossed to make up the largest salad in history. They'll then help eat that salad as a side dish to a catfish dinner on April 16 and a barbecued chicken dinner on April 17.

We hope the salad will give those people a chance to better appreciate the nation's farmers represented by the growers in the Glades area.

Primitive campground a fest first

A festival first for the 1983 Black Gold Jubilee will be the primitive campground occupied by The Everglades Cap and Ball and Black Powder Shooting Club and Historical Shooting Society and friends. The buckskinners, as President Biff Moore calls his club members, specialize in wearing clothing and using equipment which would have been authentic in pre-1840 America. He explains that the magic in the 1840 date is that this was the year the last great rendezvous was held by the fur trappers in the Rocky Mountains and the Mountain Men are heavily represented among the club members.

Moore said other groups are represented too though; American Indians, English settlers in the original 13 colonies and Canadian coureurs de bois, the French-Canadians who opened up our northern neighbor in their quest for furs.

No one knows yet how many of the club members will be camped in their teepees for Black Gold but Moore said the club is family oriented and the wives and children are as much a part of the camp's appearance as the men.

To all appearances, the camp could be lifted out of an earlier, lustier time. Campers may bring coolers to store food and drink in, Moore explained, but they'll be concealed in wooden boxes. A camper may be quaffing a can of beer but the beer will be concealed in a leather can holder.

Society members will be taking part in the parade, will hold a tomahawk throwing contest and display their prowess with muzzle-loading rifles. The camp will be open, at least for part of the time, for public inspection and Moore said he's sure at least one of the club members will roll up the sides of his teepee to show the internal layout.

Moore said a teepee is much more comfortable than most people realize and he said he's sure many visitors will be surprised at just what goes into one. He also said it's the most ecologically perfect housing he knows of;

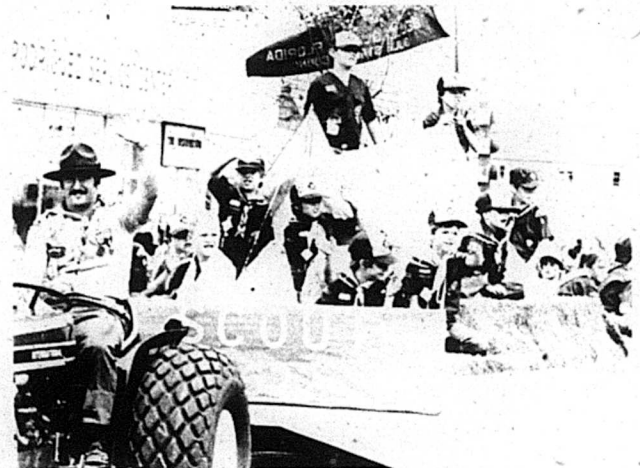

that he can recall one rendezvous in North Florida when high winds destroyed a number of permanent buildings in the area and the tents went unscathed.

This will be the first year of what Black Gold Jubilee Committee members hope will become a long, friendly relationship, with the buckskinners returning in greater numbers in future years.

The history of salad

Early salads consisted of grasses, herbs and other forms of vegetation served with salt as the dressing. Salads sprinkled with salt were especially enjoyed by the Romans. In fact, salt on greens was such a familiar combination that the Latin word for salt (sal) became the origin of the word "salad".

Salads were often served to clear the palate for the next course of a meal. Persians, for example, served salads with oil and vinegar or yogurt flavored with spices between the meat course and dessert.

According to Homer, the Greeks believed salads were a favored food of the gods. A typical meal for a Grecian gentleman was roasted or broiled meat, bread, cheese and dessert followed by a crisp vegetable salad. Centuries later, salads gained prestige in the courts of the European monarchs where royal chefs used such exotic ingredients as angelica, primrose and violets, elevating salad making to a culinary art. In 18th Century France, salads were so fashionable that chefs frequently engaged in contests to create new delicacies for the nobles.

In the early years of this century, salads were enjoyed equally by people of all social levels. Favorite family recipes were shared with friends and neighbors and were adapted to include the fruits and vegetables native to America -- corn, squash, beans, berries and others. The popularity of salads today is evident in homes and restaurants.

Belle Glade is known as the "Winter Vegetable Capital of the World," a title largely earned by the production of salad vegetables supplying the United States east of the Mississippi River.

Half-marathon tests endurance

This year's Black Gold Half Marathon and three mile run will be on Saturday April 16, 1983. The races will both start at 7:30 a.m. at Glades Central High School Football Field. The 13.1 mile runners will run towards Lake Okeechobee, past the "world's largest salad", down the Herbert Hoover Dike and back to the school.

Each runner who registers before April 6, 1983 will receive a special "Black Gold Half-Marathon" T-shirt. Trophies will be given to the first three male and female finishers in each race with medals going to the first three finishers in each age group. The age groupings for this year's half-marathon and three mile run will be as follows: under 15, 16-24, 25-40, over 40.

Last year's event was a big success with 41 runners participating. Terry Lee and Darlene Jones both of Belle Glade were last year's first place male and female 3 mile finishers, while Levelle Moreland and Angela Kelso, also of Belle Glade, took the half-marathon first place male and female trophies. Levelle Moreland's time was one hour and 28 minutes. Ed Daughery who finished second was right behind Levelle with a time of one hour and 29 minutes and 3 seconds. It was a very exciting race.

This year more runners are expected than last year and the excitement should be even greater. Registration forms are available at Belle Glade City Hall, Belle Glade Chamber of Commerce or by calling 996-8673 after 6:30 p.m. Race day registration will be at 7:00 a.m. on the 16th of April.

Softball, racquetball tournaments planned

Not all the action will be at the Marina during the 1983 Black Gold Jubilee. There'll be plenty of action at Belle Glade's Airport Park during the weeks leading up to the culminating weekend.

The park, just north of the Belle Glade Airport on Route 441, will be the site of the Black Gold Jubilee Softball Tournament and the festival's racquetball tournament.

The softball tournament will start April 7 and end April 9. Mike Underwood, the city's assistant recreation director, said he hopes the tournament will attract at least 24 teams from all over South Florida.

The park boasts two of the finest and best kept softball fields in Palm Beach County.

Trophies will be awarded to the first, second and third place teams, and to the individual who hits the most home runs during the tournament. A trophy will also be awarded to the most valuable player.

The Black Gold Jubilee Raquetball Tournament will feature four divisions: men's singles, men's doubles, mixed doubles and women's singles. This tournament will also be held at the park.

The dates for the raquetball tournament are April 5 and April 6.

A tennis tournament will be played at Airport Park prior to the events at the Marina, and a horseshoe tournament will be played at the Marina April 16 and 17.

The horseshoe tournament will feature a men's and a women's division.

The Mousetrap

There may be something new under the sun but it isn't the Agatha Christie play, The Mousetrap. The mystery thriller that opens with a woman's death scream has enjoyed the phenomenal success of a solid run since 1952 in London, playing to packed houses for more than 30 years. That gives it the longest run in the history of the legitimate theater.

The Mousetrap will be presented as part of the 1983 Black Gold Jubilee. It's being produced by the Glades College and Community Theatre, a group directed by Dr. Barry Russal, English and drama instructor at Palm Beach Junior College-Glades. Russal's group has presented two other plays over the past two years, both to full houses, but this is the group's first effort in conjunction with the jubilee.

The Glades College and Community Theatre is just that, a troupe consisting partially of students earning credit in Russal's drama class and partially of area residents interested in the theater. Russal says the eight cast members with roles in The Mousetrap are evenly divided between players who've had parts in one or both of the other two plays produced by the group and four actors who are newcomers. He said the roles aren't split into leads and bit parts though. Every part is major.

The play will be performed on the stage of the Dolly Hand Cultural Arts Center at 8 p.m. April 14 and 15. The center was opened last year and is the result of a combined effort by the state, the county, the City of Belle Glade, Palm Beach Junior College and individual efforts. It has been called the finest facility of its type in Palm Beach County and one of the finest in South Florida.

Tickets are priced at $3 and may be purchased at the college book store. For more information, contact the college at 996-3055.

Raft races always a Jubilee highlight

The raft races held in conjunction with each of the Black Gold Jubilees in the past have been so popular they've become the focal point of the celebration for some folks. The course and some of the rules have changed but the races go on from year to year, with entries getting faster and more maneuverable as the builders learn from past mistakes.

From the beginning, the most important rules have been that the rafts must be homemade, with no major components being made to travel on water, that each raft must be manned by a crew of two or more and no motors would be allowed.

For the rest, imagination and planning has been more important than brute strength and imagination and planning have provided most of the comic relief.

The first loophole that led to a win, and a rules change, was found in the first race, when then-City Manager Bob Sanders and his teammate, Craig Butterfield, alternated on a light plywood and innertube contraption, with most of the power being provided by the one in the water and wearing swim fins to kick the raft across the finish line before the nearest competitor rounded the final marker in the Rim Canal.

Then there was the Lutzitania, a fancy looking vessel entered by the Kenneth Lutz family. The problem with the Lutzitania is that it followed too closely in the wake of its namesake and sank before it made it to the starting line.

In the meantime, rafts equipped with paddle wheels have been dominating the races, especially since the rafters have figured out how to turn around the race buoy markers

...and it took some of them awhile to make the turnaround.

The races are scheduled for Sunday, April 17 this year and for the first time will be split into "unlimited" and "open" classes, mostly because of the intense competition built up over the past five years.

Paddle wheels are being cut out of the open division, along with any other mechanical system. Open rafts must have a minimum of four crewmembers. Unlimited rafts can still use anything but motors or engines and there is no minimum size for the crews.

And, by the way, anybody considered a crewmember has to be on the raft, not pushing it.

Races in the open division will be split into men's, women's and mixed company crews. Unlimited crews will be at the discretion of the sponsors.

THERE has to be a better way to row this thing.

Brownies march proudly.

Ann Tampanna will be easy to see

The Black Gold Jubilee is supposed to be a celebration of the end of the harvest season, and what better way to drive that home than to bring in the world's largest salad and a walking salad?

It's hard to see how anyone could miss the point while they're munching on a portion of the salad and watching Ana Tampanna do her stuff in a costume designed especially for the Jubilee.

The method of her arrival at the parade Saturday morning will be a surprise, but be warned that she has arrived at other events in some rather outrageous and dramatic manners, including on the back of an elephant or dangling from a crane.

Tampanna will be wearing a costume that she describes as "colorful, glamorous, outrageous and photographic masterpiece." Her antics have earned her three appearances on NBC's "Real People."

She will also give several acting performance in an attempt to excite the crowd.

Only one Stella Taylor's cross-Lake Okeechobee swim was the Black Gold Jubilee Highlight. This year it is a giant salad, sure to find a place in world record books.
